MARRIAGE AT NOON.

Miss Lewis and Mr. Burton Made One—A Pretty Ceremony at West Washington.

West Washington Street Baptist church was the scene of a very pretty wedding today at high noon, when Rev. W. C. Newton, pastor of the church, spoke the words that made Mr. Charles Burton and Miss Annie Lewis man and wife. The church had been tastefully decorated with potted plants and evergreens, among which were several beautiful palms.

Promptly at the appointed hour, to he strans of Mendelssohn's wedding march played by Miss Mabel Hill, and Messrs. F. O. Lawson and Ney Forbis, the bridal party entered the church. First came the ushers, Messrs. W. I. Underwood, R. B. Beall, C. O. Forbis, Bascomb Ogburn, Banks Boon, and Kauffman Venable. Following the ushers came the maid of honor, Miss Sallie Eagles, of Crisp, N. C., and at the same time Rev. Mr. Newton came from his study. Then came the bride leaning on the ar mof her brother, Mr. Hugh Lewis, who gave her away. They were met at the altar by the groom on the arm of his best man, Mr. C. W. Dudley, and the solemn words of the marriage ceremony were then spoken by the minister. The ceremony was used.

During the ceremony Mendelssohn's duet, "I Would That My Love" was softly played by Miss Hill and Messrs. Lawson and Forbis, and the soft tones of the violins and piano blended well together and rendered the whole service more beautiful and impressive.

Immediately after the ceremony the couple were driven to the depot and amidst the shower of rice thrown by friends and well wishers, left to spend their honeymoon in Washington City Upon their return they will board with Mr. Burton's parents on Lithia street.

The happy couple were the recipients of many handsome presents testifying to the esteem in which they are held.

Mr. Burton is, and for several years has been, assistant postmaster.

The bride was attired in a blue travelling gown and carried a white carnations and ferns. The maid of honor wore tan and carried pink roses, and ferns.

Civil Service Examination.

The civil service examination was held in the government building today by Examiner Robert W. Hodgin. The examination was for the railway mail service. Eighteen applications were in, but only twelve of the applicants came to be examined. The railway mail service belongs in the second grade. The examinations lasted about four hours.

Excellent and Cheap Work.

To the Editor of the Telegram:

The foundation of the Colonial Column was finished at the Battle Ground yesterday. It contains 105⅝ cubit feet of solid granite, Portland cement, the best on the market, and pure sharp, white sand. It was laid by an experienced and excellent rock-mason. it cost the Colonial Column fund five dollars exactly and no more. Can anybody beat that? The Messrs. Woodroffe gave the granite, the Southern the freight, the neighbors the sand, the lake the water and the reason why the always liberal and public spirited firm of Odell & Co. didn't give the cement was because I was ashamed to ask them for it. I compromised with conscience and their clerk and took it at cost. If Greensboro will give me three hundred dollars I will do it at once. We will greet Governor Aycock properly on the coming Fourth, and will unveil for him an exceedingly handsome fifteen hundred dollar monument at three fifth its market valu. The four bronze tablets at Odell's convey a correct idea of the character of the whole.

Yours truly,
JOS. M. MOREHEAD,
Vice President G. B. G Co.

Services at the Catholic Church.

Owing to an oversight the following account of Easter Sunday services at St. Benedicts, was not delivered Monday for publication. By request, it is printed today.

The day will long be remembered by the members of St. Benedicts' congregation as a day of unusual splendor. The celebration of the great feast at this church is always notworthy, but this year seems to have eclipsed all previous attempts at festive grandeur.

Long before the hour of service the church was taxed to its utmost seating capacity and at 10:30 the Rev. Rector and sanctuary boys entered the church to the strains of "Sweet and Low." High mass was celebrated by Father Anthony, assisted by R. D. Douglas as Master of Ceremonies.

The musical program was of exceptional brilliancy and was ample evidence that the choir of St. Benedicts' is unsurpassed by any North Carolina Catholic choirs in throughness and ability. Leonard's mass was sung by the choir, and its artistic rendition showed how correct and exact had been their training. Great credit is due to all but in particular to the soloists, Mrs. Claudie Smith and Mrs. Chas. E Holt, Mrs. Haskins, and Mr. J. McLorley.

It was the unanimous verdict that nothing more could be desired for St. Benedict's than its Easter success and unbounded thanks are given to the members of the Altar Society,to the organist, Mrs. L. Neale, the director, Mr. J. J. McLorley.

It is the wish of all that St. Benedicts' will long contiue its great musical career.

Before the sermon of Father Anthony, Mr. J. J. McLorley sang the "Veni Creator." Mr. McLorley possesses a deep, rich voice and his singing Easter Sunday, marked him as a master of musical expression.

Dusky Damsels Do Some Scrapping.

This morning immediately after the northbound local arrived in the city, a young negro girl wearing a much abused cap, snatched a last season's straw hat from the head of another negro girl, and claimed it as her own. This liberty was resented and a scuffle ensued around the car steps, which effectually prevented passengers from boarding the train. In a few seconds a third dusky damsel arrived on the scene, likewise attired in a straw hat, and took a hand in the fray. The new belligerent, seeing the hat made a dive for it and incidentally got a handful of hair also. Both hats were effectually destroyed, the snatcher remarking that if she could not have them no one shoud. The disturbance was carried into the train where the presence of passengers caused its stoppage.

Death of Mr. Rice.

Mr. John F. Rice died this morning on Pearson street of Bright's disease. The remains will be taken tomorrow morning to Spencer and interred there. He leaves a wife and three children, one daughter, Mrs. James Phipps, living in Spencer, and the other two children,one boy and one girl, are both small and live in this city.

Mr. Rice was a Virginian and came to Greensboro from that State about thirteen years ago.

D. M. Elder, a store keeper and guager, was convicted of complicity in defrauding the government of tax. Sentence has not yet been pronounced.

REGISTRAR CASES ARE NOL PROSSED

ACTION TAKEN LATE YESTERDAY

MR. HOLTON ACTS FOR THE PEACE AND QUIET OF THE STATE.

Says That he Dismisses the Cases in Response to the Recommendation of Leading Conservative Citizens of all Parties as Conducive to the Peace and Quiet of the State.

Late yesterday afternoon the cases against the Dememocratic registrars, which were instituted immediately after the August election, were called up by District Attorney Holton. This action has been expected daily now for some time. As mentioned yesterday, Attorney General Gilmer came here yesterday. He was satisfied with the result and went back to Raleigh last night.

The indicted men had been notified some time ago by their attorneys that they need not be here, as it was understood from the result of various conferences here that the cases would not be pushed. When Mr Holton called the cases yesterday asternoon, just before adjournment, the two following statements were made, which embraced the entire proceedings relating to the cases. Mr. Holton said:

'In view of the situation in this State and the general desire for peace and quiet, and in consideration of what we conceive to be for the best interest of the State, we respectfully recommend to the court that, in these cases, a nolle prosequi be entered upon the terms and conditions following, that is to say: First. That the United States Attorney reserves the right to reinstate these cases and prosecute them when, in his opinion, the public good requires.

"Second. We are prompted to pursue the course in consideration of the recommendations made to us by leading conservative men of the State, of all political parties, as that course would, in their opinion, best subserve the public welfare, regardless of the guilt or innocence of the parties.

"Third. That this course is recommended without passing upon the question of the guilt of the parties, inasmuch as, according to the testimony in the possession of the government, the defendants, in our opinion, might properly be convicted; but with the sole desire to further what is conceived to be promotive of peace and quietude in the State, and with the firm relief on our part that it is the desire of the law-abiding citizens of the State to secure and enforce the constitutional right of every citizen and fully protect him in the exercise of his elective franchise and privileges.

"If these commendable purposes can be accomplished or subserved we consider it to be for the best interest of the State in the present state of affairs to discontinue the further prosecution of these cases, with the understanding that conditions hereafter are to be such that there will be no necessity for the prosecution of such cases."

In ordering the cases nol prossed, Judge Boyd said:

"The court approves the course taken by the District Attorney, because I believe that it will be better to subserve the future peace and good order of the State than would a further prosecution of the conditions which surround me, and I am satisfied that those who represent the best classes of citizens desire to uphold the good name of the State, and preserve that harmony and good will among our people which ought to prevail for the best interests of all.

"I have confidence in the integrity of those who have suggested the action taken today in these cases, and I commend the District Attorney that he has responded to a request which seems to come to him as a command from representatives of the best social and business elements of the State. The cessation of the turmoil which has afflicted us, the restoraton of peaceful and cordial relations among our people are considerations far above those which may enter into any individual prosecutions.

"Believing that the discontinuance of these cases is a long step toward the realization of conditions so material to the future welfare of the community, I desire to express my hearty approval of the action which has been taken and I am sure that all good citizens will join me in the hope that what has been done here today will have the effect to cement together our people in closer bond of friendship and inure to the inestimable blessings of peace and good order among us."

Cantata Friday Night.

Dudley Buck's Easter Cantata "Christ the Victor" will be given at West Market Street church Friday night When Mr. Edward Baxter Perry, the pianist, was here he spoke of this Cantata and said "There is fine work in that Cantata," and the work is being finely done under the direction of Prof. Clarence Brown.

This is one musical event that will interest every body, those highly educated in music, and equally, those who know nothing of good music, for the story told in song is the story of the Ressurrection, word for word, as told by St. Matthew—that sublime theme that appeals to all Christians the world over. It is not a denominational affair but is to be rendered by voices representing all churches, and will be enjoyed by all who hear it. A full program for the evening will appear tomorrow. Watch for it.

Dr. Gregory Explained It.

Some boys who gather up and sell bones,carried a lot to Pheonix & Co's. yesterday to sell. In the lot Mr. Pheonix found two sections of a large vertebral column, at least fourteen inches in diameter, and years and years old. People were puzzled for a long time as they looked at the bones, and surmised that the remains of a huge prehistoric animal had been discovered. But Dr. Gregory came along and solved the mistery. He said that on one occasion, while a show was here some thirty years ago, an elephant which had become unruly, had been killed on the spot where the bones were found.

Commends Judge Boyd.

Concord Tribune.

A distiller was brought before Judge Boyd at Greensboro Saturday on the charge of concealing and removing unstamped whiskey. His attorney entered a plea of guilty and the prosecuting attorney recommended that judgment be suspended. The court thought differently, and ordered the plea of guilty withdrawn and a jury trial was gone into. We have here, in our own courts, had many cases of judgment suspended, and hope Judge Boyd's example will be followed by all judges in the State, and ugly violation of the law be thoroughly gone into, and a full and just punishment imposed on the guilty.

Mr. R. A. Gray, agent in this city for the Empire Drill Company, has obtained a patent for improvement in seed drills with fertilizer attachments. The invention is said to be a good one.

VISITOR.

A Valuable Machine.

The machine to shrink tires while cold on the wheels, recently installed by Mr. John Lewis, is now in running order and work is being turned off in a hurry. The machine does the work with rapidity and at the same time does not injure the wheel in the least. It also has an automatic dishing arrangement, which gives every wheel the dish desired, an dthe fact that the dishing arrangement is automatic insures that the dish in each wheel of the same vehicle is equal.

HOUSEHOLD LORE.

Items of Information Regarding Bedclothes, Table Linen and Doilies.

For the outer covering of beds there are all sorts of pretty and novel things in white and colors. Possibly the handsomest are those of heavy linen, embroidered in white by hand. Some of the more elaborate have the whole center embroidered, a broad embroidered border outlined with drawn work and a wide hem finished with a row of drawn work at the head. On brass beds these quilts take the place of the valence, hanging down on all sides. The monogram frequently appears at one side of the embroidery center. The durable Marseilles quilts come both plain woven and embroidered, in white or in colors, says the Washington Star.

The fancy for embroidery also extends to the finish of sheets and pillow cases. "Shams" are still much used, though many housekeepers prefer cases, into which the pillows are buttoned. These are large and square. They are laid aside at night, however, in favor of smaller pillows with plainer covers. Monograms or initials for sheets are two or three inches high and worked in the center just about the hem. For pillow cases the letters are smaller.

Sheets for double beds should be three yards long before hemming. This allows for a three-inch hem at the top, one-half the width at the bottom, and leaves the sheet a little more than 2¾ yards long after shrinkage in washing. A sheet large enough to tuck under and stay where it is put is the only kind sure to be a comfort to the user. The thrifty English fashion of covering the ends of comfortables with a width of thin muslin or cheese cloth, which can be removed and washed whenever soiled is one that commends itself to all housekeepers. The untoward tendency of light-colored comforts to show soiling where they are tucked under the neck of the sleeper is in this way obviated.

In purchasing table linen the cream weave will be found more durable than the white or half bleached. While pattern tablecloths are more desirable for "best" than those cut from the web, the latter will be found much cheaper for everyday use. Cheap, sleezy damask is never advisable, the loose weave rendering it a poor investment, in point of service. The medium grades of either Scotch or Irish make will be found unequaled for satisfactory wearing qualities. Before hemming a tablecloth see that it is cut by the pattern. The thread makes the pattern and if one follows the pattern it takes less time than pulling the thread. While hemstitching makes a pretty finish, it cannot endure hard usage, and is, therefore, inappropriate for cloths that have to be frequently laundered. The best way to hem everyday linen is to turn and baste a narrow hem, then folding the hem back again on the right side of the cloth, sew the hem to the cloth by hand in an over-and-over seam. Then flatten and press the hem in place. The monogram or initial of the house mistress should be wrought diagonally in one corner in white linen or outline silk.

A new wrinkle in luncheon cloths is to have them woven in two tints, yellow and white, pink and white or green and white. With gold-banded china the yellow and white combination is remarkably effective. Nothing, however, is in better taste than the rich, thick, solid linen which is usually handsomely decorated by hand embroidery or border sprays and a center garland large enough to surround a vase of flowers or fruit piece. The pure white affords a capital background for crystal and silver as well as fancy doilies and pretty dishes.

Quantities of doilies are now sold, so many people using them without a tablecloth for breakfast and luncheon on Sunday night tea. Those of heavy linen with solid white embroidery are most durable and exceedingly popular. Very effective also are the Japanese grass linen sets, which come in both white and colored embroidery with Japanese floral designs.

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 10.

POLITICAL CASES NOL PROSSED.

It is well to be frank about the so-called "political cases" in this State, which have been occupying so much attention of late. We are all prone to regard these from the standpoint of our own political bias, as we are most questions. But if it were possible for an observer from the outside to come in without preferances or prejudices whatever, it is pretty certain that he would see clearly that all these cases, the indictment of the Democratic registrars and the impeachment of the Republican judges are on all fours: that political spite and partisan purposes were at the bottom of each. He would not be deceived by the Republicans in their former pious protestations that they were standing for the law and the rights of the humblest voter, neither would he be deceived by the similarly pious claims of the Democrats that they were protecting the Constitution He would also discover that both parties had been saved from their worse elements by the genuine desire of the conservative forces in each for force and friendliness. One more discovery this imaginary observer would make: that the fire-eating, down-the-rascals-and-give-me-the-offices elements in each party which have been thwarted, are really very much chagrined that the cases have been disposed of as they have and that there is a prospect now of real peace.

Our readers should not allow themselves to be so busy as to overlook the fact that Prof. Burton, of Cornell, has discovered that the Garden of Eden was located in China, and that Adam and Eve were Chinese. So interesting a fact regarding our forebears should not be allowed to go uncelebrated.

WANTED THEM CHAINED.

Shrewd Trick Upon English Scouts Who Gave De Wet Too Much Trouble.

Grim as he is reported to be, the Boer commandant, Christian De Wet, who is just now giving the British in South Africa no end of trouble, is capable of humor, though of a sort that does not always please his antagonists. Some time ago three yeomanry scouts were taken prisoners by him. The Boer, who does not care to be burdened with prisoners, told these three yeomen, on being brought before him, that he had an important dispatch for Gen. Rundle and if they would undertake to personally deliver it to the general he would give them back their liberty. Naturally they were elated at the proposal, and all three gave De Wet their word of honor to deliver the missive into Gen. Rundle's own hands. They received it, a large envelope, well sealed, and with all the outward appearance of containing some important document. Possibly they may have thought it contained a proposal from De Wet to Rundle to surrender. In any case they lost no time in saddling up and covered the ground in haste. On reaching Rundle's headquarters they insisted on handing the letter to the general personally, and on his opening it—the three braves still standing as his audience—he read aloud the contents as follows:

To Gen. Rundle—Dear Sir: Please chain up these three devils, as I can't catch them every day. Yours, DE WET.

Grew Fat While Besieged.

Frederick Palmer, the war correspondent, who accompanied the relief expedition of the allies to Peking, says he carried a bottle of ale all the way from Tientsin to the Chinese capital, thinking how welcome it would be to a friend when he crawled out of his bomb-proof, emaciated and famished. "What he did," writes Palmer, "was to offer me beer and to ask why the relieving column had been so long in coming. He has gained ten pounds since I saw him last. Rice and horse meat seem to be fattening."—N. Y. Herald.

WINTER SPORT.

I saw to-day a gladsome sight,
I stood upon a hill
Whose gentle slope extends far down
Beyond the silent mill;
And snow and ice had made the place
A glorious one to coast,
And half a hundred girls and boys
Were out—a merry host.

Some sleds were shod with shining steel
And decked with red and blue;
And some were made by unskilled hands,
Yet sped right swiftly, too.
And rude toboggans, loaded well
With happy children, made
Their daring trips, the noisy crews
Laughing and unafraid.

I saw six merry little girls
In one unbroken train
Go coasting down without a sled!
I looked, and looked again;
And as they climbed the hill, I saw
Each carried in her hand
Just this—a kitchen dust-pan,
Broad, strong and well-japanned.

Each mounted, and around her feet
Tucked carefully her gown,
Then on this cutter, queer but fleet,
Triumphantly rode down.
Safely they rode, with joyous shouts,
They seemed to like it well;
Though how they steered the funny craft
I'm sure I cannot tell.

Mrs. WAY-DOWN-BLUE'S IDEAS

By F. B. CALLAWAY.

"OH, DEAR!" complained Mrs. Way-down-blue, meeting her friend, Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, on the way home. "I do hate to go to my house. It is so lonely!"

"What has become of your ideas?" questioned Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, in surprise.

"They are every one gone," moaned Mrs. Way-down-blue, and the tears filled her eyes. "Not a single one is left to speak to me."

"How very sad," returned Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, somewhat perplexed. "Did you feed them regularly?"

"Feeding ideas! Who ever heard of such nonsense!" exclaimed Mrs. Way-down-blue, drying her eyes in astonishment.

"I would as soon starve myself as starve my ideas," replied Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, thoughtfully. "Do you remember, neighbor, when we first set up housekeeping we were fitted out with the same number of ideas. I had six and you had half a dozen."

"It doesn't seem possible I ever had so many as half a dozen ideas, all at once," sighed Mrs. Way-down-blue; "and now they are every one gone."

"You might recall them?"

"I have shouted until I am deaf and dumb, but they won't come back, and if they did, I couldn't keep them over night."

"Where is your memory?" asked Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, kindly.

"Oh, I have the poorest memory in the world," returned Mrs. Way-down-blue, dolefully. "Nothing ever stays in it unless it be unpleasant things I wish to get rid of and they stick like burrs. The happy, pleasant ideas run out at one gate while I am crowding them in at the other."

"Do you mean to say that you have no control over your ideas?" asked Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, very much astonished.

"I never mean to work them too hard, but just let them come and go as they will. No one could have been more indulgent to their ideas than I have been," and at this Mrs. Way-down-blue burst into tears.

"Perhaps I can help you to recall some of these happy ideas," said Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, brightly. "Do you not recollect the roll of beautiful stuffs, velvets and silks with gold and spangled tissues which our good Mother Tongue left with us to clothe our ideas?"

"Oh, bother Mother Tongue!" cried Mrs. Way-down-blue. "I never had the patience to open that great roll."

"Then you have never known what fun it is fitting out one's ideas in neat little jackets and gowns. You should have seen one that came to me in a friend's letter this morning. It was just sparkling."

"Oh, you may fuss if you like," retorted Mrs. Way-down-blue. "I shall not take the time to make up things when I can borrow of my neighbors or send round to the second-hand shop. I always tack on something blue so people will know they are my ideas, and they run their errands just as well."

"But, my dear," urged Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, "it is useless to send abroad ideas like ragamuffins, for they receive so little consideration. Ideas are like people; when they are well dressed they feel so much happier and more agreeable, and they can travel round so much better."

"Do ideas travel; that is, outside the village?" questioned Mrs. Way-down-blue, opening her eyes.

"Ideas are great travelers, and when witty and clever enough they often go round the world. Stop and dine with me, Mrs. Way-down-blue, and I will introduce you to some of these clever ideas. You may like to take a few of them home with you."

Being sadly in need of entertainment, Mrs. Way-down-blue willingly consented, and was presently amazed at the number of gentle, well-behaved ideas waiting upon Mrs. Cheery-up-heart in her own home. So bright and pleasant they were that Mrs. Way-down-blue was even in danger of forgetting that her name was Blue as one gracious company came after another bearing lighted tapers and roses to the guests, while others followed with little pots of honey from the well-filled hives in memory's garden.

Mrs. Cheery-up-heart also called upon her guests to introduce any ideas they might have brought with them, and one, clapping his hands, brought a set newly arrived from distant travel. These ideas unfolded before the company's wondering gaze fine webs cunningly wrought with strange and curious scenes from foreign lands, which furnished material for much worthy conversation. The other guests furnished rich entertainment of songs and stories, while all were provided with jests and repartee that flashed back and forth so rapidly Mrs. Way-down-blue was fairly dazzled with their brilliance.

Strange to relate, Mrs. Way-down-blue's own ideas now came flocking back to her, and she opened her mouth once to speak, but perceiving that her ideas in ragged, ill-fitting jackets would be received with surprise by the company, the poor lady remained miserably silent.

"What were you about to say, my neighbor?" and Mrs. Cheery-up-heart turned to her hospitably.

"I was thinking," returned Mrs. Way-down-blue, humbly; "I would like to know where you keep all this company of ideas."

"We keep them in idea gardens, or you might call them memory gardens. In these gardens we shelter our ideas carefully, train them to obedience and cherish them as we would cherish our friends, for they are indeed friends, these good ideas who bring us both riches and happiness."

"But where do you find them—these ideas so beautiful and so good?" asked Mrs. Way-down-blue.

"We find them around us, if we only know how to look. But these ideas have odd ways of hiding in unexpected places. They may be cunningly wrapped up in a flower bud or a drop of water. They have been found in a bit of coal or even curling in merry wreaths out of the spout of a tea kettle. Some men have taken great pains to throw nets over the stars to catch ideas, and one learned philosopher found an extraordinary idea in a falling apple."

"Is there nothing more you can tell me about these ideas?" asked Mrs. Way-down-blue, with growing interest.

"There is one more secret, as terrible as it is beautiful. Ideas never come alone; they bring their associates with them. Cherish one evil, lawless idea, and seven more wicked than itself will surely come with it. These will call in more and more until presently you find yourself enslaved, bound hand and foot, and the end"—here Mrs. Cheery-up-heart whispered a word to her neighbor, at which both ladies turned pale and shivered.

"On the contrary, cherish one good idea and this idea will call in a whole family of relatives, also good and beautiful."

"That is well worth knowing," mused Mrs. Way-down-blue.

"Yes, good ideas have a way of calling in more and more, for ideas are like children and always come clasping each other's hands. So one idea calls in another until you find yourself surrounded by a shining host which, like angels, attend your waking hour and your dreams and are always with you."

"I see one shining in your eyes now," cried Mrs. Way-down-blue, eagerly.

"How quick you are—what may it be?" asked Mrs. Cheery-up-heart, smiling.

"It is the idea of love—with your leave I shall take it home with me."—Union Signal.

COLDS

The quickest relief, for a cold, is by Scott's emulsion of cod-liver oil.

We all have colds, you can try it and see. You will find the edge taken off in a night; and, in three or four days, you'll be wondering whether that cold amounted to anything anyhow.

That's relief. If you tackle it quick, the relief is quick and complete, if you wait till the cold is in full possession of head and lung, why, of course, the relief is quick if it comes in a week.

A little emulsion won't clear and restore your whole breathing-machine in a minute; don't be looking for miracles.

We'll send you a little to try, if you like.
SCOTT & BOWNE, 409 Pearl street, New York.

A Florida man has purchased 300 acres of swamp land near Swan Bridge, and will turn it into a breeding place for alligators. These reptiles are becoming scarce, owing to the activity of northern hunters, and, as there is a steady demand for alligator skins, the speculator hopes to do well.

It will cost 62 cents per swear if you swear in Portland, a little town below the Water Gap, says a Stroudsburg (Pa.) correspondent in the Philadelphia Record. Swearing has become so obnoxious to some of the inhabitants that they have determined to enforce the old law against profanity.

Chickens are now plucked in a wholesale manner by the use of pneumatic machinery. There is a receptacle in which the bird is placed after being killed, and into this are turned several cross currents of air from electrical fans revolving at the rate of 5,000 turns per minute. In the twinkling of an eye the bird is stripped of its feathers, even to the tiniest particle of down, and the machine is ready for another.

SALT NOT A CURE-ALL.

"What Is One Man's Meat Is Another Man's Poison," Is a True Saying.

The usefulness of saline preparations in the treatment of certain physical conditions was widely recognized by the medical profession years ago, but no doctor of sound mind believes that any new "elixir of life" has been discovered in salt combinations or in anything else. Who was the ancient sage who said: "One man's meat is another man's poison?" Various salts may, of course, be beneficial to one patient and injurious to another, but no sodium compounds, chlorides or phosphates will cure everybody, says the New York Tribune. Gen. Pleasanton thought at one time that he had found the true secret of long life and the universal healer in exposure to sunlight passing through blue glass. For several years in the '70s the blue glass craze had a wonderful popularity in New York and other cities and azure-tinted windows and glass rooms on roofs were plentiful in the Murray hill quarter of Manhattan. That delusion died away and all the experiments in stimulating motion in the hearts of dead turtles by salt saturation will soon be forgotten.

The ablest physicians in this country and everywhere else are always glad to test thoroughly any new preparation which may help their patients and they certainly have no prejudice against any saline mixtures or amalgamations which may give promise of usefulness. But the average man or woman should not take up an exclusive diet of corned beef and salt pork or increase extensively the daily consumption of salt in any form without consulting a competent medical adviser. Salt will not transform extreme age into lusty youth, as Mephistopheles transformed Faust, nor will it prolong life to a hundred years, even if it is absorbed in profusion. As a western humorist remarked, Lot's wife is not now living. But surely there was no lack of salt in her case.

WINE OF CARDUI

A SURE MEDICINE.

HANDSOM, VA., Dec. 31.

I have been suffering from female weakness for four years, and have taken many medicines, but Wine of Cardui and Black-Draught have done more for me than anything else.

MRS. CAROLINE EVANS.

McELREE'S
Wine of Cardui

It is a mistake to take any and every kind of medicine when you are sick. There is danger in it. Most of the so-called cures for "female weakness" do nothing more than deaden the pain temporarily, and when the effect wears away the patient is weaker and sicker than before. It is never wise to take chances. You have only one life, and that is dear and precious. If you have any pain, ache, disorder or weakness in the feminine organs, nothing will help you like Wine of Cardui. It helps do away with morning sickness during the early stages of pregnancy, and modifies the pains of childbirth; recovery is rapid and future health is assured. The Wine is purely vegetable, being made of herbs whose medicinal properties act directly upon the organs of womanhood. It is a long-tried remedy, and has many years of success behind it. It is sure. Why take a chance medicine when you can get a sure medicine?

HIS COSTLY MEAL OF EGGS.

What He Ate Would Have Brought Him $600 an Hour Later.

Washington Evening Star.

"Six hundred dollars worth of eggs would seem to be a rather heavy breakfast for one man to eat," observed a well known scientist, "but I can certify that a man ate that amount of eggs, and that he told meafter he had got away with them that they had not fully satisfied his hunger. Ten minutes after he had finished his meal he complained that the eggs did not sit well in his stomach. It happened in this way:

"Several years since I was out in the Rocky Mountains, in Colorado, hunting eggs for the Smithsonian Institution. I was instructed to devote special attention to pheasant eggs and to one variety in particular, the yellow pheasant, popularly called, which were then, as now, very scare. The trip was on the whole rather successful, though I did not find many of the particular kind of pheasant eggs referred to. One morning I found myself on one of the high mountains which surrounded the city of Georgetown, Col. I had my own breakfast in town and rode up the mountain on a burro carrying on my search for pheasant eggs..

"About 10 o'clock I ran across a mine prospector, who was just finishing up his breakfast. After spending some time in conversation with him, I noticed some pieces of egg shell on the ground. To my surprise and delight they were the shell of the pheasant egg I was so anxious to find. Not supposing that he was interested in my branch science, I mentioned in a casual way that the eggs were of a species of yellow pheasants that I was exceedingly anxious to find or secure. Then he told me that in his wandering up on the mountain that morning he had found a nest cotaining the eggs, and finding that they were fresh he had eaten them, six in all.

"Then it was my turn to talk, and when I had told him that the eggs were very rare and that I would willingly pay $100 a pice for them he looked disgusted and actually turned pale. He had been having a rather hard run of luck and felt very sorry that, of course, that he had unaware partaken of such a high priced breakfast. He thought he might be able to find another nest thereabouts and offered to furnish me six eggs of the same species for a sum considerable less than $600 which offer I accepted. We hunted together all that day and every day for a week, but to no prupose. Three months later I made a similar find myself, but but says he has never been able to eat from there. The eggs I found are in the Smithsonian yet, and as I know, about the only eggs of that particular species in any collection in this country.

"A year ago I got a letter from the prospector. He is still in Colorado, ument at three fifths its market value an egg of any kind since."
